Gettysburg to Be Governed By "Boy Burgess"; County Officers to Be Supplanted

Sylvester McKenrick Elected Burgess in Observance of National Boys' Week; Paul Reaser Is County Treasurer; Frank Gardner, Register and Recorder; Jacob Weikert, Clerk of Courts, and Charles Bender, Prothonotary.

For one hour next Tuesday afternoon, Gettysburg will have a "boy burgess," while the reins of the county government will be placed in the hands of a number of colleagues of the "burgess" for the same length of time.

Running on an independent ticket, with good government for Gettysburg as the main plank in his platform, Sylvester McKenrick was given an overwhelming vote by his constituents, students of the Gettysburg High School, in an election contest held Thursday.

"His honor, the burgess," as he has been officially designated by his followers, is known as a leader, having been captain of the football team at high school one year, and his forthcoming administration, short though it may be, is looked upon as certain to develop better things for the party, and the town, of course.

While "Mac" is running the town for his allotted term next Tuesday afternoon, his colleagues, whom he carried to victory in Thursday's general election, will be in charge of Adams county, and progressive government is forecast for the terms of boydom's county officers.

County Officers
Those youthful politicians, whose standards witnessed victory in Thursday's spirited election contest at the high school, and who have been designated to manage the affairs of Adams county for one hour next Tuesday afternoon, are Paul Reaser, who will assume the duties of county treasurer; Frank Gardner, register and recorder; Jacob Weikert, clerk of the courts, and Charles Bender, prothonotary.

And then, because the office of Gettysburg's Chamber of Commerce is located at the court house, and since Young America will have full sway in the county and municipal governments next Tuesday, Don Bream was elected secretary of the Chamber of Commerce, and he will oust Millard B. Simmons for his temporary term.

One of the county officials is following in the footsteps of an illustrious father; and if the saw, "Like father like son," counts for anything, the tenure of office of Frank Gardner, should be particularly successful. Frank's father, Charles W. Gardner, once served a term as register and recorder not so many years ago, and heredity apparently is playing an important role in Frank's life already.

What is the meaning of all this? someone is heard to remark. The answer is plain and simple.

National Boys' Week is being celebrated throughout the country from Sunday, April 26 to Saturday, May 2, and Gettysburg is helping to raise boyhood to a new and higher plane by participating in the national event. Arthur R. Jones, chairman of the Boys' Work committee of the Gettysburg Rotary Club, is the moving figure in Gettysburg's participation in National Boys' Week.

Church Cooperation
From every pulpit in Gettysburg mention of Boys' Week will be made, and a number of pastors are planning special sermons for boys, who are being urged to attend all religious services on Sunday as one of the scheduled events of the week's celebration.

To impress boys with the value of an education as a necessary requisite in character building for citizenship, to interest mother and fathers in their own boys, to inspire in boys a reverence for their parents and to emphasize the home as the greatest institution for character building, Monday has been set aside as "boys' day" in schools and at home.

W. W. Wood, football coach at Gettysburg College, and secretary of the college Y. M. C. A., has been secured to address a Father and Sons' luncheon arranged by members of the Gettysburg Lions Club at the Eagle Hotel, Monday evening at 6 o'clock, as part of the celebration of Boys' Week. At the Rotary Club meeting, the members will be asked to return to their homes at the close of their

"SHEIKS" START SOCKLESS FAD

West Palm Beach, Fla., April 24.—The "sheik" fad of wearing garterless socks, which has been sweeping the colleges and high schools of the country, was relegated to the back pages of out-of-date styles Thursday, when more than a score of Palm Beach high school boys put in an appearance at the school grounds wearing neither garters, socks nor shoes.

The exploitation of the fad was short lived, however, for the members of the barefoot club were suspended from the school for the remainder of the week.

Arctic Romance Shattered

Mrs. HAROLD NOICE and HUSBAND

The Arctic romance of Mr. and Mrs. Harold Noice of two years ago has been shattered. Noice was the leader of the famous Steffanson relief party which went to Wrangel Island in 1923, to find only one member—Ada Bladyade—alive. On a visit to California he met Miss Frances Allison, daughter of the late William Allison, millionaire New Jersey banker. Noice and Miss Allison were married, but their romance was short lived. She is now in Reno, evidently seeking a separation. Noice is living alone in New York.

Red Cross Repudiates Part in Tag Day Schedule Saturday

Repudiation of any participation in a scheduled tag day in Gettysburg on Saturday, for the benefit of the Volunteers of America, came at a meeting of members of a committee, alleged to have been named by the organizer of the tag day without their consent, Thursday afternoon at 4 o'clock at the home of Miss Margaret McMillan, South Stratton street. As a result of the meeting and an investigation by Miss McMillan, secretary of the Adams County Red Cross Chapter, and others, the tag day, scheduled for Saturday, has been called off, and children to whom notices were sent asking them to help in the sale of the tags have been asked to disregard the appeal.

It was stated this morning by members of the committee named by the Volunteers of America worker that repudiation of their assistance in the affair was not to be considered a slur on the organization represented, but rather on the method of procedure used by the solicitor sent here to arrange for the tag day.

The solicitor, whose name was given as Miss Ashton, was an accredited representative of the Volunteers of America, which members of the committee said were engaged in a good work, being much on the same order as the Salvation Army, but responses to questions about what was to be done with the money collected, who was the head of the organization she claimed to represent and when she would return to Gettysburg again were described as "vague and hazy."

The persons named on the committee in charge of the tag day by Miss Ashton were the Rev. N. L. Horn, chairman; the Rev. C. C. Cole, Mrs. William A. Miller and Mrs. E. Stansbury. Miss Margaret Howard, a teacher in the public schools, was named as the person in charge of headquarters, and the person to whom the school children were to turn over the money collected from the sale of the tags.

It was stated by members of the committee this morning that Miss Ashton had used their names on postal cards sent to the children, without their permission, or without explaining fully what she planned to do. (Continued on Eighth Page)

Maryland Writer Pays Tribute To Elsie Singmaster Lewars

Appearing in Trinity Lutheran church, of which the Rev. Dr. J. S. Simon, father of Carl Simon, one of their number, is pastor, before the largest concert audience ever to hear them sing, the Seminary Quartet of the Lutheran Theological Seminary scored a tremendous hit in Hagerstown, Thursday night.

Assisting the seminarians with their concert was Mrs. Elsie Singmaster Lewars, noted short story writer, of Gettysburg, who presented an original composition in Pennsylvania German dialect.

Approximately 1,000 persons attended the concert which was held under the auspices of the Helpers' class of the church.

The appearance of Elsie Singmaster Lewars in Hagerstown was given considerable prominence in the newspapers there, and a feature writer on a morning newspaper, writing under the title "Dixie," has the following to say about Mrs. Lewars:

"I was fortunate in having been born a Pennsylvania German, and in moving to Gettysburg to live."

Thus does Mrs. Lewars, president of the Missionary Society and ardent worker in the Lutheran church, modestly disclaim credit for the fame of Elsie Singmaster, one of the foremost short story writers of America.

A small, brown-eyed figure in a wine colored crepe, with hair just beginning to gray, and a quiet gentleness of manner that makes a stranger entirely forget that here is a celebrity—with a capital C—this is Mrs. Elsie Singmaster Lewars.

"I was fortunate in having a new field," was Mrs. Lewars' explanation of her success. But she did not seem to remember that many lesser writers have copied her theme and style—and failed miserably in reaching even a stage of comparison with Elsie Singmaster. It may have been the pre-

Mervin Spangler Informs Local Official of Suspicious Looking Quartet of Men Roaming About Woods; Men Offer no Resistance When Surrounded by Sheriff's Posse.

Surprised as they huddled in the dense brush of a woods along Alloways Creek, near Harney, 15 miles south of Gettysburg, the four prisoners who used acid and saws in breaking out of the Carroll county jail, Westminster, Maryland, Wednesday were captured this morning at 10:30 o'clock by Sheriff John C. Shealer and a posse of deputy sheriffs.

Notified by Mervin Spangler, a farmer, in the lower end of Adams county, at 9:30 o'clock this morning of three suspicious-looking characters, one of whom had asked him for a chew of tobacco, Sheriff Shealer started out to run down the group. At Littlestown, he met Deputy Sheriff Blaine Bixler, who also had been notified of the strange looking men on the Spangler farm.

Believing that the group might be some of the quartet who escaped from the Westminster jail and knowing that one of them was said to be a dangerous and notorious criminal, Sheriff Shealer enlisted the aid of Clarence Stoner and Walter Hood, of Littlestown, who were deputized.

At the same time, Carroll county authorities were notified to proceed to the place where the strangers were last seen. The Adams county officials reached the place first. It was found from Mr. Spangler that the three men to whom he had talked had moved on to a woods near Alloways Creek, on the farm of Isaiah Harner.

450 CHICAGO STUDENTSTO VISIT FIELD

Four hundred and fifty Chicago school children are coming to visit Gettysburg on Sunday, the feature of which will be the planting of a memorial tree at High Water Mark on the battlefield as a token of their pilgrimage to the spot made sacred by the blood of the North and South.

In the party are members of the Lane Technical High School and the Washington town clubs of a number of other high schools in the Windy City. The students will arrive in Harrisburg on Sunday morning and come to Gettysburg by automobile, arriving here at 10:30 o'clock.

A tour of the battlefield under the direction of competent guides will follow their arrival here, and the national park authorities have given their consent to the planting of a memorial tree, which succeeding Chicago High School children are expected to visit each year, as Gettysburg is made one of the feature stops of a trip to the National Capital.

Sunday's party will be in charge of Benjamin A. Polzin, head of the civic training department of the Lane Technical High School.

Fire Traps 14 Men in Silver Mine in Idaho

(By Associated Press.)
Wallace, Idaho, April 24.—Hope that the 14 men entrapped by fire in the workings of the Hecla Silver-Lead mine seven miles from here were still alive and would be rescued from their prison on the lower level, was expressed by a newspaper correspondent who returned from the mine this morning.

He declared that the imprisoned men are believed to be in the Star workings along side the main shaft of the Hecla mine.

Air pumps were working, it was said, to clear the air of the Star workings of any gas or smoke that may have penetrated to that part of the underground tunnel.

Twenty helmeted men of the U. S. mine rescue forces were on the ground ready to go below.

If the men still are in the mine experts said they were confident that they were in no great danger. The belief was expressed that the fire would be confined to the Hecla mine proper and that it could be brought under control.

Three men were rescued alive about eight o'clock and brought to the surface.

Disinfectants, fumigants, insecticides and everything else used in the spring cleaning for house, barn or outbuildings. People's Drug Store, The Rexall, Kodak, Victrola Store. adv. 1.

Surrounding the woods, the four Adams county officials moved in toward the denser brush near the center, where they came upon four men, who were recognized at once as the four Westminster jail-breakers.

No Resistance
The quartet made no resistance when they were surprised by the officers. A thorough search was made of each of the four, but they were found to be unarmed.

The most dangerous of the quartet was Harry, alias "Happy," Rhinehart, 47, who was being held at Westminster on a charge of felonious entry and larceny. He has a lengthy criminal record in Pennsylvania, it is said, and at present is on parole from the Western penitentiary.

The other three prisoners were William and Herman Smith, brothers, and Thomas Smith, listed as a "hobo."

Shortly after Sheriff Shealer and his deputies captured the escaped prisoners Sheriff William T. Phillips, of Carroll county, and District Attorney Theodore F. Brown arrived at the Harner farm. They brought a number of deputies with them, and the Adams county authorities surrendered the prisoners to the Maryland officials, who immediately took them back to the Westminster jail.

Used Saws and Acid
The four men escaped from the jail about 4 o'clock, Wednesday afternoon, while Sheriff Phillips was absent. They are said to have used acid and saws in breaking jail. A small steel saw was found where it had been dropped by one of the prisoners, but an examination showed that it had not been used.

A silver table knife also was found. It was not the kind used by the prisoners at their meals, and evidently the knife, saw and acid had been smuggled into the prisoners. It was said the Smith brothers had a few visitors, who were subjected to the usual inquiry. With the exception of Rhinehart, none of the four was regarded as a dangerous character.

Seven Men In Jail
The jail has no warden, but adjoins the home of Deputy Sheriff John Shipley. The cells open into a large "cage" where the prisoners take their exercise. Seven men were in the jail at the time of the delivery.

Three of the seven prisoners said they were asleep when the escape was made.

The quartet cut the bars of the cells and the grating of a window at the end of the corridor leading from the "cage" to the rear of the building.

Raymond Snyder, one of the prisoners, was awakened by the men climbing out of the window. He notified Mrs. Shipley, wife of the deputy. Shipley and Phillips were absent on business at the time, but the former returned shortly after the escape had been made.

Headed for Pennsylvania
The men are believed to have headed for Pennsylvania upon gaining their short-lived freedom, and struck into the woods in the southern part of Adams county, where they are believed to have been in hiding since.

State and local police were notified here Wednesday evening to be on the lookout for the quartet, but no clue upon which to work was had until this morning when Mr. Spangler notified Sheriff Shealer of the suspicious-looking characters, who asked him for tobacco.

Under the direction of Miss Louise Allen, practices for "Rosetime," a musical comedy, to be given at the Lincoln Way Theatre, next Monday night under the auspices of the Acorn Club, for the benefit of the Warner Hospital, are moving along nicely. Miss Allen who was here four years ago to direct the "Microbe of Love," for the Acorn Club, is pleased with the talent she has found here for "Rosetime," which requires a number of characters with good voices and pleasing stage presence.

ONE WOUNDED IN RUM ROW BATTLE

Two Trucks Are Confiscated With 167 Cases of Liquor; Boat Is Sunk Under Machine Gun Fire.

Atlantic City, April 24.—One man is known to have been wounded, a boat was sunk by machine gun fire, another escaped and two trucks together with 167 cases of liquor seized were the results of an early surprise raid by two officers and four men from the "Dry Navy" on a band of smugglers attempting to unload whiskey at Margate.

A man whose identity has not been learned was wounded when the federal men opened fire on the smuggler's boat after it had attempted to escape. Despite orders to halt, the machine gun was trained on it. So accurate was the fire of the gunner that soon it was seen to burst into flames and shortly afterward sink. Two of the men on board are reported to have dragged a third out of the craft and to safety.

The two trucks with 27 cases of liquor in one of them were brought to the dry navy base here, and later 140 cases were salvaged by coast guards from the sunken craft. Attempts are now being made to raise it.

WHEELER CASE GOES TO JURY

Both Sides Agree to Forego Calling of Further Witnesses; Wheeler in High Spirits.

Great Falls, Mont., April 24.—The trial of Senator Burton K. Wheeler reached its final stages here Thursday when the defense rested, after both prosecution and defense counsel agreed to forego the calling of witnesses intended to controvert testimony previously offered by witnesses for both sides.

The Montana Senator is charged with appearing illegally before the Department of the Interior in behalf of Gordon Campbell, Montana oil operator, after the lawyer's election to the Senate.

No Further Witnesses

Earlier in the day, Senator Thomas J. Walsh, chief of Wheeler's counsel, announced that the defense had examined every available witness and asked the prosecution to allow a stipulation as to what the testimony of four witnesses, hastily summoned from the East, would be.

However, a conference between the attorneys and Federal Judge Frank S. Dietrich resulted in the announcement that neither side would call further witnesses, and that final arguments probably would begin today.

Defense witnesses, summoned from the East, were to offer testimony in an effort to impeach the government's star witness, George P. Hayes, New York attorney, Senator Walsh said. Hayes testified that Wheeler approached him in New York in March, 1923, and asked him to appear in his place before the Interior Department to prosecute oil-prospecting permits being sought by Campbell.

226 PUPILS WILL TAKE H. S. EXAMS

Largest Number in School History to Seek Admittance to High Schools Saturday.

High school entrance examinations will be taken by 226 qualified pupils at five centrally located examination points in Adams county, beginning at 8:30 o'clock, Saturday morning. The pupils who pass this examination will be qualified to enter any high school in the county in the fall.

The places at which the examinations will be given, the chairman in charge, and the number scheduled to take the tests at each place follow:

Gettysburg, W. D. Reynolds, chairman, 65; Abbottstown, John A. Hale, chairman, 35; Biglerville, C. I. Raf-fensperger, 57; Littlestown, Paul E. King, chairman, 33, and York Springs, W. Roy Starry, chairman, 36.

This is the largest number of applicants for the high school examinations ever to be qualified to the county superintendent, last year the number being 187. A number of those who take the examinations, however, did not pass.

"Look! What I say? This heem?"
The lantern's circle of light rose and widened as he held it higher until it

"Look! What I say? This heem?"

covered a cot on which a waking sleeper was pushing himself up on one arm and reaching under a pillow with the other hand.

"A lady," the Mexican said, and putting the lantern on the bare boards, he slid out and closed the door.

The man on the cot sprang up, raised the lantern, and at the end of a high exclamation he gasped for another breath and ejaculated, "Brena!"

"Yes, Peter. Thank God, Peter. I came in time."

"Time—time for what? I'm all right, dear. I cabled you to wait."

"I started, Peter. I didn't get it."

"They told you in New York?"

"Yes, Peter, they said you'd had a call."

"I didn't say so, dear. I said I had business here."

"I don't care—you forget. You are the third—I couldn't stand it, Peter. It was you—that's different."

"You're tired out." He held the lantern higher again.

"No, I'm not, Peter," she said, with a brisk unconvincing lie. "I want you to be glad I came."

He dropped the lantern; it went out. He put his arms around her and bent her head close to his shoulder as he patted her hair with the open palm of his hand. He said, "Glad? Me? Glad? Brena! I can't say it, dear. The cup runs over at the brim!"

"I've been in mortal fear, Peter," she whispered and shivered in his arms. "I thought I had sent you away to your end—the thing that took the others."

"No," said he.

"Can you tell, Peter?"

"I can't tell—sure. I can guess. I guess I'm going to fix everything. If not, there's something too big—too ghastly—"

"But if you never came back to me—if anything—" She stopped. "Why Peter, I flung myself down sometimes. I prayed to be forgiven for ever having spoken to you. I begged relief from the hideous idea that I had let you start at all."

"Look here," he said severely. "Did you send me that warning—to the steamer?"

She was silent.

"Answer."

"Yes. I thought I must stop you, dear."

"Bad business," he said. "Look here, Brena. For the first time in my life I've been figuring what a real partnership really means. And it can't exist without perfect unbroken truth—playing the game, not separately, but together—all the time—an unbroken record."

She said, "I know. There isn't much to say. My fear. My conscience. And it was you who were going to take the risk. Not anybody else, Peter—and I loved you. I took the paper from a package from the chemist's shop. I wrote."

"It won't do," he said harshly. "It is a bad spot on the fruit."

For a long time she sat on the edge of his cot without a word. At last, "Peter."

"Yes."

"Tell me, Peter. There must have been times when you wondered about me—doubted me—questioned me. Did you keep faith?"

He waited, but his answer was clear. It was not only an answer to her question; in his voice there was more—an understanding of the truth that right and wrong are not readily divided with a high impassable wall between them. There is a teetering, and that which counts is the spirit of the game, that leads one to put weight most often on the right end. All this he said to her in the one word: "No!"

After a moment her hand came through the dark into his.

"I think we are all right, Peter," she said. "If we can ever have each other, dear—forever—I think we could—"

"Do what?"

"Work out something pretty fine."

"We will," he said. "I'm almost at the point where I score, Brena. I've brought a high-powered car here. Two hundred-odd miles into this hell of desert. And tomorrow, I go tomorrow."

He struck a match and relit the lantern.

"Tell me, Peter," she said, brushing the red-gold hair back from her forehead.

"I did tell you. I said I had a theory—a theory about where they went—Hennepin first—and Parmelee. If I am not right, heaven help us! I've not been afraid yet—not in my real self. If I'm right I'll laugh at myself for toting a gun around and for a lot of fool ideas I've had. But if I'm wrong now, I'd be afraid. I'm no coward, but I'd squirm with fear!"

Her eyes were full of a troubled expression.

"But you don't tell me, Peter."

"I can't."

"Why not?"

"Because if I was wrong it would always appear to you that I had been the inventor of injustice. Let me test your faith in me, Brena. Give me three days more."

"Yes, but when you ride off into the desert—to danger, you said, provided you were wrong—I'm going too."

"You can't."

"Yes, I am going with you, Peter."

"It might be too hideous."

"I am going."

The strange authority with which she sometimes spoke was now in her voice and in her eyes; it was as if she were speaking, not out of herself alone, but were one who voiced a decree of those who had willed an inexorable end.

"Let me show you then where we are going," he said with his lips pressed together. "Let me show you a map. Let me tell you how we shall have to steer our way over a trailless waste by compass as if we were at sea! It's a country of terrible distances and heat and thirst. If the car breaks down they'd never hear of us."

"We'd be out there for years," she said in the voice of one who in a great happiness feels sleep pulling down the eyelids, drawing its mists across the mind. "We'd have our hands—like this—together. But very bony, I suppose. I'd rather—do that, Peter—than—not have—each other—"

He picked her up in his arms. He felt her limp weight pulling at his shoulders. He heard her whispering, "I'm not ill, Peter. I'm just tired. And I don't have to pretend with you, do I?" He felt her warm breath.

He put her down at full length on the cot and sitting on the floor beside her he moved his fingertips across her white forehead. Her profile of features, of body, of drapery, made him think of the queens and saints carved in marble on the tops of sarcophagi in ancient abbeys; lying in this sordid little room, her face turned toward the smoky ceiling, nevertheless she had their calm, their suggestion of belonging to great emotions, a season of great deeds and to some grand continuity. Brena had been carved by a great sculptor, and the limp hand that still rested in sleep upon his bare neck was warm with the promise of living expectancies.

CHAPTER XVII

Brena, who had slept long and restfully in spite of the stinging dry heat, had awakened before the sun had gone down to find Peter was attending to the last details of equipping the high-powered car that he had bought in El Paso. It was below the window in the old courtyard with the crumbling adobe wall.

"Hello," he had said, looking up. "You just missed seeing the population of this town. The entire ten were here. They don't know we're going to strike into the desert instead of going eastward."

He had held up his fingers to count on them. "We're all provisioned now—from the general store—gasoline cans, water in demijohns, matches, canned beans and other things, a bottle of olives, guaranteed very old, and one paper napkin. I say—why do you ever do your hair up at all? It's rather wonderful, falling all around like that."

"I didn't take it down."

"No, I did. I ran it through my fingers like a miser with his gold—and his untarnished copper threads, if a miser has them too. Why not braid it? We're going where there are no fashions, Brena."

"Today?"

"Tonight. There'll be a white moon as big as a plate for hours. We'll make a hundred miles at least through the depression that runs along the bed of some prehistoric torrent to the northwest. Thanks to old Father Carlos, the hard-headed Jesuit, it's on the map. Easy to follow."

the Smiths in the quartet was arrested by him about ten years ago on a charge of stealing oats from a farmer in this county. His record, according to the sheriff, is at the court house. A partner in the oat-stealing expedition was never captured, according to the sheriff.

From the time Sheriff Shealer received word of the suspicious looking characters from Mr. Spangler until he returned to Gettysburg was less than two hours. Shortly before 11:30 o'clock, Sheriff Shealer was back at the jail.

Rheumatism

"Yes! it's all gone."

DO NOT close your eyes and think that health, free motion and strength are gone from you forever! It is not so. You can get rid of your rheumatism by building up your blood power. It is a fact that rheumatism means "blood poverty." It is a fact with the increase of red cells in your blood, impurities are destroyed. It is a fact that S.S.S. will help Nature build these red-blood-cells! S.S.S. is one of the most powerful blood cleansers in existence. Its results in thousands of rheumatic cases have been nothing short of amazing! The medicinal ingredients of S.S.S. are purely vegetable. This is very important to remember! What can be more inspiring, more wonderful than to see the shackles of pain released from your struggling body, swellings, lingering pains, stiffness of joints and muscles all disappear; your stomach made strong; your face pink with the old sweetheart glow, your blood enriched and your cheeks more plump as they used to be. You can do it! Take S.S.S., the great destroyer of rheumatic impurities.

S. S. S. is sold at all good drug stores in two sizes. The larger size is more economical.

No! There is Nothing Just as Good!

"I KNOW because we have ever since our physician first prescribed it years ago. It has never failed to stop itching and relieve skin irritations at once, and usually clears away the trouble in short order."

In thousands of homes Resinol enjoys this same enviable position because it soothes its way into the skin and attacks the real root of the disorder. It works quickly, yet its action is gentle. It costs little and goes a long way. Ask your druggist for Resinol when you want a safe skin treatment.

UNIQUE CONTEST FOR BOYS, GIRLS

"$5000 in cash awards to the boys and girls who render the best first aid service in 1925" is the announcement of the People's Drug Store in today's issue of the Gettysburg Times.

The announcement, made through the Bauer & Black company, makers of first aid supplies for homes, hospitals and doctors throughout the world, calls attention to the Boys and Girls First Aid Week.

The People's Drug Store, representative of Bauer & Black, will assist local young men and women in the contest. 500 ten dollar gold pieces will be given away free to the 500 boys and girls who render the best first aid service. By calling at the local drug store, each contestant will be presented with a membership button, a kit of first aid supplies and book that explains what to do when an accident happens while waiting for medical attention.

The contest is made nation wide and a number of Gettysburg boys and girls are expected to participate.

note in fiction. Before that the Pennsylvania Germans were unknown to magazine readers.

With a very real anxiety, such as might be felt by the most commonplace and obscure autoist, Elsie Singmaster wondered if the lights were lighted on the car parked outside, in front of Trinity Lutheran parsonage where she was a guest of Mrs. J. S. Simon. She peered through the window, and turned to the pretty girl nearby: "Maybe you'd run out and look, Thelma. We don't want to be tagged and have to appear at the station house." And Miss Thelma Stitzel, who is so obliging when you go to the C. and P. office to pay an overdue bill, hastened out to ward off any lurking traffic cops.

Writes Under Trees
Mrs. Lewars talks little about herself. She speaks mostly of the talents of the Seminary Quartet, and how interesting Gettysburg is. But Mrs. Hanson, wife of the president of Gettysburg College, who attended the concert at Trinity last night, talked about the daughter of the president of the Theological Seminary. "She is a wonderful worker in the church, and takes such an interest in all the events at the seminary," Mrs. Hanson said. And then she went on to tell how, on pleasant summer days, if you circle around the battlefield and find the right path, you can come upon Elsie Singmaster seated under a great shady tree, writing a story that you may read later in The Saturday Evening Post or Century. Mrs. Lewars herself admits quite freely that some stories come back. "I feel very grateful to editors for returning them," she smiled with her slow quiet smile, "for I have been able to improve some of them, and some I have been glad remained unpublished."

Elsie Singmaster is proof that literary fame is not to be found only upon the streets of Manhattan. She is one of the writers who have culled their subject matter from small towns and quiet surroundings, and who have found the un-metropolitan community not only profitable material for fiction, but a pleasant habitation for reality. She has lived in Gettysburg with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Singmaster, since the death of her husband, who was a well known musician.

Judges ought to be more learned than witty, more reverent than plausible, and more advised than confident, above all things, integrity is their portion and proper virtue. —Bacon.

COLLINS' BODY TAKEN FROM CAVE

Cave City, Ky., April 24.—The body of Floyd Collins, cave explorer, died from hunger, and exposure, was trapped in Sand Cave late in January. Wednesday was freed from its natural underground prison and moved from beneath the rock that pinned it to the bottom of the seventy-foot shaft, Mr. H. Hunt, Central City, Kentucky, engineer, declared.

The body was in good condition, considering the time it had been exposed to the underground elements, Mr. Hunt said. He also announced that the body will be raised from the shaft to the surface.

Examination of the rock that fell on Collins and pinned him in the death trap showed that it weighed only seventy-five pounds, according to Hunt.

Just after two workmen had succeeded in removing the body from under the small rock, the portion of the tunnel and lateral in which the body was found collapsed and fell from sixty to one hundred feet into a pit directly behind the position where the body had reclined. Collins had told rescuers who had crawled to him in the first days of his entrapment that there was a deep pit behind him.

DIGNITY

My sense of humor says "tee-hee,"
Unto my solmen dignity.
My dignity would strike a pose
And be an image wearing clothes.
I think 'twould rather be refined
Than either lovable or kind.
It paints me greater than I am,
And glories in the frills of sham.
Whenever I am dignified
My children run away and hide.
When lofty manners I assume
My dog gets up and quits the room.
Full-panoplied with dignity
My best friends wouldn't speak to me.

My sense of humor laughs out loud
To see me arrogant and proud.
Though dignity in some is good,
In me 'twould be misunderstood.
I couldn't be myself and hold
The world at bay with manners cold.
If joy is running, with a grin,
I take the dare and plunge right in.
I can be dignified and will
When life no longer holds a thrill.
I'll wear a solmen face and keep
The graven look of wisdom deep.
My friends shall see me dignified,
The morning after I have died.

HUDSON-ESSEX
SALES INCREASE

E. L. Weikert, Jr., Local Distributor Declares April Sales Exceed Early Expectations.

"The old fashioned 'spring rush' is a hardy animal. There were predictions during the winter that the great swing to closed cars would level out this oldtime feature of the business.
But good as winter business was, our April sales are going at a rate just twice as fast," says E. L. Weikert, Jr., Hudson-Exsex dealer.

"For example, the fore part of April has a volume of new Hudson-Exsex cars sold and registered—about ninety-six per cent of them being coaches—which is double our average volume for the year. This is despite the fact that our winter business was consistently good.

"It all goes to show that there is something in the air of spring that wakes up a man's motoring urge. Men who have been thinking of buying cars suddenly pput their money in their pocket and get ready to buy. That is the same urge which wakes up the clothing and sporting goods markets, and makes women look about for new bonnets and wraps.

"We are fortunate that this season of great demand is being met by an unprecedented production of cars at the Hudson-Exsex plant. The factory is now working 24 hours a day to keep up with the demand for prompt deliveries. One thousand cars a day—the largest six cylinder business, by far, in the industry—are being made, and we would be mighty glad if the number could be increased.

"Our activity in this city is simply typical of what is going on all around the country. The cities and the country, the East and the West, all are finding a demand for Hudson-Exsex cars which they must exert every effort to fill. The demand for Hudson and Exsex is simply overwhelming.

"It looks to me as if April, May and June of this year would furnish one of the most striking spring rushes of business we ever have known. The motor car that deserves success and a demand from the public is going to sell in large numbers.

"The demand for Exsex particularly is something most remarkable. I do not believe we shall be able to catch up with it all this year."—adv.

$2,250,000 FIRE
DESTROYS GRAIN

Chicago, April 24.—Chicago's worst elevator fire in twenty years early yesterday destroyed two huge structures and approximately 2,000,000 bushels of corn and oats, doing damage estimated at $2,250,000.
Nearly half of the fire apparatus of the city was summoned in the frantic fight to stop the threatened destruction of surrounding lumber yards, packing plants, other grain elevators, coal yards and the flimsy homes of hundreds of poor families.
Police are investigating a report that two persons are missing.

Half the world
is half asleep

It is terrible to feel all dragged out—to live from one day to the next in a constant state of weariness. Yet thousands do, because constipation is destroying their energy—even their interest in life. Only Kellogg's ALL-BRAN
brings sure and safe relief from this disease.

Fired because he was always tired

"Drowsy Bill," they called him—a lifeless, eternally tired, old-young man. He tried hard enough, but his energies always sagged before the job was done. One day Bill was missing . . . fired.

In every walk of life you'll find men and women who are fighting constipation
—the dread disease which robs the body of its energy and strength. But thank goodness, there is pleasant, safe, permanent relief from constipation—Kellogg's
ALL-BRAN.

Kellogg's ALL-BRAN is what doctors call a bulk food. As it journeys through the body, its fiber remains unchanged.
Therefore, it can sweep the intestine clean. ALL-BRAN also absorbs and carries moisture through the intestinal tract, thus stimulating regular, healthy action.
ALL-BRAN urges nature to act normally—something that habit-forming pills and drugs can never do.

Serve Kellogg's ALL-BRAN with milk or cream, sprinkled over other cereals or cooked with hot cereals. Delicious with fruit. Also use the many recipes given on every package. If eaten regularly, Kellogg's ALL-BRAN is guaranteed to bring permanent relief or the grocer returns the purchase price. Eat two tablespoonfuls daily—in chronic cases, with every meal.

Be careful! Only ALL-BRAN brings sure results. Be sure to get Kellogg's ALL-BRAN.
A part-bran product is only partially effective—maybe not at all. Kellogg's is the original and only ALL-BRAN. All grocers sell it. Served in leading hotels and restaurants. Buy a package

Critics Unfair, Say Those Who Were in Storm That Sank Japanese Freighter This Week.

New York, April 24.—The New York water front supported Capt. John Roberts, of the Homeric, Thursday, against the criticism of some of his passengers that he failed to make "a heroic effort" to rescue the thirty-eight members of the crew of the Raifuku Maru, when she foundered Tuesday of Nova Scotia.

So did officials of the White Star line, which owns the Homeric.

Crew Supports Master
The crew of the Homeric—all 574 of them, officers and men—spoke up for their commander.

They got up a petition to the president of the British Board of Trade protesting against statements published in the American press against Captain Roberts and swearing that he did everything that any sane man could have done under the existing conditions to save the lives of the thirty-eight Japanese.

Although they declined to dignify with official statement the slurs against Roberts, a hero of the Gallipoli campaign and a central figure in several sea rescues, many privately joined other shipping men in the comment:

There are always a few fools aboard who know more than the captain.

weekly luncheon and spend the evening with their boys and families. Citizenship for Gettysburg youths will be stressed on Tuesday, and to that end the reins of town and county governments will be turned over to a group of young high school lads at 4 o'clock, Tuesday afternoon. The youthful "rulers" will be in office for one hour, during which time they will be taught the part each county official plays in the operation of Gettysburg and Adams county.

Boys' Responsibility

One of the reasons for electing the high school boys to the various offices is to impress upon parents the responsibility of training boys to be good citizens.

No events have been planned for Wednesday, but Thursday has been set aside as boys' day in industry. On that day it is planned to take groups of boys through various industries in Gettysburg to show them the opportunities in business and professional life, and to interest them in the value of learning a trade or profession.

Furniture factories, silk mill, newspaper plant, rubber heel factory and a wood-working concern are on the list for visitations by the boys and men in charge of them on that day.

recently purchased from Mrs. Elsie Fail. G. B. Pittenturf, of Biglerville, is the contractor.

Mr. and Mrs. Emory Yeates and Miss Mary Yeates, of Lemoyne, spent Tuesday with Mr. and Mrs. M. F. Slaybaugh and family.

By this visit, it is hoped to interest the businessman in the boy as a potential employer, captain of industry and leader in business.

Friday is to be known as out-of-doors day, and the value of athletics, woodcraft, scouting and other forms of open air recreation is to be impressed upon boys.

Linked up with Boys' Week is the annual Adams county field day meet to be held at Nixon Field on Saturday, in which not only hundreds of boys but several hundred girls from all parts of the county are expected to participate.

A friend is worth all hazards we can run.

do with the names. Miss Ashton, it was stated, called upon several members of the committee and secured from them indorsement of the work of the Volunteers of America, but she did not tell of the proposed tag day.

Name Not Authorized
The name of Mrs. Miller, used by Miss Ashton, was never authorized by the former for that purpose, since she has been sick in bed since Monday, and has not been allowed visitors, members of the committee said.

Miss Ashton also is said to have told Miss McMillan that half of the funds collected would be turned over to the Red Cross, but upon being asked from whom they could be secured the solicitor merely gave the name of a man in Philadelphia, and was not able to give his address.

The solicitor, or organizer, told Miss McMillan that the rest of the money was to be used for children's work. When asked where and how, Miss Ashton is said to have replied "everywhere" and was unable to clearly say in what way children would be helped.

From the principal of the Meade school building, Miss Ashton secured the names of a number of boys and girls in the seventh and eighth grades to whom she sent post cards asking them to help sell the tags on Saturday. The appeal was signed by the word "committee," but those whose names appeared on the card did not sanction the plan nor give permission to use their names. W. D. Reynolds, supervising principal of schools in Gettysburg, is said to have refused to give Miss Ashton permission to secure school boys and girls to help sell the tags.
